The Quite Zone - Get Ready To Hear the Difference

While new rail lines are built far from City centers most existing lines tend to be right in the center of town. The City of Wharton has heard the outcry from citizens on the issues with Kansas City Southern trains coming through the once quite railway that was put back into operation after twenty years. In June of 2009, KCS went into service operating daily trains from Rosenberg to Victoria. Citizens along the railway and surrounding areas hear numerous train horns throughout the day and night and complain of their homes being affected by the vibration of the trains which can run a max speed of 49 miles per hour. KCS reports that the route could see as many as 18 trains a day and with three crossings located in the City limits, some citizens feel that is too much of the intrusive noise. Texas has a statutory requirement for trains approaching an intersection from a quarter of a mile distance to sound a horn and the issue for the City of Wharton is that there are the three crossings which are located within close proximity to each other. Up until June of 2005 cities did not have a say in how locomotive horns were used when passing through their towns but a federal statute was passed that gives exceptions to the rule. The City of Wharton has listened to citizens and moved forward in an effort to seek relief for those that are affected by the automatic sounding of horns at intersections and has made strides along with KCS by making an application for a waiver to the horn requirement. The City will now have some relief from the noise of the horns. Although, it has been found that sometimes it is not possible to have a Quite Zone that is really quite, there has been an effort made regarding the intersections in town. The City does not have control over those intersections in the County, which means those close to the tracks will still hear the sound of the horn as the train enters and exits the City. On June 22, 2015 the City received notice that the zone establishment was approved by the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) pending the City of Wharton's action. The City approved the Quiet Zone implementation for October 1, 2015. The Public Works Department has installed the necessary materials for the Quiet Zone. The effective date for the zone was October 1, 2015. Residents can now rest easy in knowing that train horns will not disrupt their day or night. New signs alerting motorists of the Quite Zone are placed at each intersection.

Halloween

Planning ahead can help make this Halloween a fire-safe one. Taking simple fire safety precautions, like making sure fabrics for costumes and decorative materials are flame-resistant, can prevent fires. During the five-year-period of 2006-2010, the National Fire Protection Association estimates that decorations were the item first ignited in an estimated average of 1,000 reported home structure fires per year. These fires caused an estimated average of 6 civilian deaths, 53 civilian injuries and $16 million in direct property damage per year.

Thanksgiving.

- Make sure kids stay away from hot food and liquids. The steam or splash from vegetables, gravy or coffee could cause serious burns.
- Keep the floor clear so you don't trip over kids, toys, pocketbooks or bags.
- Keep knives out of the reach of children.
- Be sure electric cords from an electric knife, coffee maker, plate warmer or mixer are not dangling off the counter within easy reach of a child.

Christmas

- Between 2007-2011, U.S. fire departments responded to an average of 230 home fires that started with Christmas trees per year. These fires caused an average of 6 deaths, 22 injuries, and $18.3 million in direct property damage annually.
- On average, one of every 40 reported home fires that began with a Christmas tree resulted in a death, compared to an average of one death per 142 total reported home fires.
- Electrical problems were factors in one-third (32%) of home Christmas tree structure fires.
