HURRICANE HARVEY

News Release

Texans Can Avert Financial Disaster with Flood Insurance

AUSTIN, Texas — Hurricane Harvey last summer showed that everyone needs to prepare for the unexpected. Even if your home or business is not in a high-risk flood area, an insurance policy through the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) could save you from an array of surprise expenses.

Homeowners and renters insurance do not cover flood-related damages, but affordable flood insurance is available if your community participates in NFIP. The average flood insurance policy costs about $700 annually, and the average claim pays $43,000.

After Harvey, more than 91,000 Texans filed flood insurance claims, and NFIP has paid an estimated $8.68 billion. Nearly 676,000 Texans are now covered by flood insurance, including more than 90,000 who have signed up since Harvey.

Homeowners can acquire up to $350,000 of flood coverage through NFIP, with $250,000 for the building itself and another $100,000 for its contents. Owners of residential properties with five or more units can purchase $500,000 of structural coverage and $100,000 for the structure's contents. Commercial property owners can purchase $500,000 of structural coverage and $500,000 of coverage for contents.

Most NFIP policies also include Increased Cost of Compliance coverage for structures whose repairs will cost at least 50 percent of the property's market value. This provides up to $30,000 in additional coverage if the policyholder needs to elevate, relocate or demolish the structure to comply with local standards for rebuilding in a floodplain.

Property owners outside of high-risk areas should know 26 percent of all NFIP claims come from areas considered to be at low or moderate risk for floods. In those lower-risk areas, property owners may qualify for a Preferred Risk Policy (PRP), which provides the same level of coverage as a standard policy but at a lower cost.

No one should rely on federal disaster assistance to make them whole after a flood. Federal assistance is only available if the president declares a disaster, and even then, assistance is likely to be provided in the form of a low-interest loan that must be paid back. During Harvey recovery, households eligible for a federal housing award have received $7,053 on average. Homeowners and renters eligible for a U.S. Small Business Administration loan have received an average of $74,761.

Hurricane season begins June 1, and there is typically a 30-day waiting period before flood coverage goes into effect, so act now. Plan ahead so you're prepared when a flood hits.

NFIP insurance is only available in communities that participate in the program and pass floodplain management regulations to reduce the impact of future weather events. To find out if you're in an NFIP community, contact your insurance agent or your local floodplain manager.

FEMA's mission: Helping people before, during, and after disasters.

Disaster recovery assistance is available without regard to race, color, religion, nationality, sex, age, disability, English proficiency or economic status. If you or someone you know has been discriminated against, call FEMA toll-free at 800-621-3362 (voice, 711/VRS - Video Relay Service) (TTY: 800-462-7585). Multilingual operators are available (press 2 for Spanish).

The SBA is the federal government's primary source of money for the long-term rebuilding of disaster-damaged private property. SBA helps businesses of all sizes, private non-profit organizations, homeowners and renters fund repairs or rebuilding efforts and cover the cost of replacing lost or disaster-damaged personal property. These disaster loans cover losses not fully compensated by insurance or other recoveries and do not duplicate benefits of other agencies or organizations. For more information, applicants may contact SBA's Disaster Assistance Customer Service Center by calling (800) 659-2955, emailing disastercustomerservice@sba.gov, or visiting SBA's website at www.sba.gov/disaster. Deaf and hard-of-hearing individuals may call (800) 877-8339.
